RELATED APPLICATIONS

This application claims priority to US Provisional Application Serial No. 60/407,128 filed August 29, 2002 and entitled "Sensor Apparatus for Detecting Earthquake Generated P-Waves and Generating a Responsive Control Signal". The content thereof is expressly incorporated by reference into this application.

FIELD OF THE INVENTION

The present invention is directed to apparatus and methods for detection of impending earthquakes and more particularly, to an improved detector and method for discriminating between general seismic vibrations and those which can be identified as precursors to an earthquake.

BACKGROUND OF THE INVENTION

Every year, earthquakes around the world are responsible for the loss of thousands of lives and result in billions of dollars of structural damage, both directly and indirectly, from collateral damage aftermath. Earthquake events, as well as the related damage and losses caused thereby have increased in frequency and magnitude in recent years. For example, in the 1989 Loma Prieta earthquake that devastated portions of the San Francisco Bay Area, much of the damage was caused by systems failures after the earthquake hit. Compounding the direct damages from the actual earthquake, significant property loss resulted from gas-line ruptures and
